WHY "Tecolote"?

(A Short, Short, Story.)

About thirty years ago Mr. Luther Gage started growing Ranunculus, Anemones, and other flowers at his ranch in Carlsbad, California.

On this ranch, living in abandoned Squirrel burroughs were some Ground Owls called "Tecolote" by the Mexicans who worked on the place. So Mr. Gage thought "Tecolote Gardens" a good name for his ranch.

As a thoroughly experienced Horticulturist Mr. Gage imported the finest strains from all over the world and by careful hybridizing and selecting he soon was producing Ranunculus flowers far superior to anything anyone had ever before seen. Florists and Seedsmen soon were offering premium prices to get his flowers and bulbs, and called them the "Tecolote Gardens" flowers. In fact some of the retail trade thought "TECOLOTE" was the name of the Large, Gorgeous, Double flowers, instead of Ranunculus. Mr. Gage then decided to have us market his bulbs under the "TECOLOTE" trademark to distinguish his strains from others. And so that is WHY we call our finest strains "TECOLOTE".

"TECOLOTE in the past twenty-five years has become a symbol of quality only because of the exquisite flowers "TECOLOTE" bulbs continue to produce.

During the war the quality of our strains was continually improved in spite of the fact that just producing a small crop seemed impossible at times. Now that we can again plant the prewar acreage we hope to be able to fully supply your needs with the "TECOLOTE GIANTS" Ranunculus and Anemones, Freesia "TECOLOTE" Hybrids and other bulbs you require.
